This invention relates to novel polymeric perfluoro-2-alkoxy-N-acyl-6-oxa-4-aza-norbornanes. This invention also relates to the use of such polymers as surfactants, especially as surfactants in organic or aqueous systems. It further relates to the preparation of such polymers. The use of perfluoropolyether materials as surfactants and as oil recovery fluids is known. For example, J. F. Habib et al. in U.S. Pat. No. 4,259,183 have described the use of selected perfluorinated hydrocarbon materials as recoveries fluids. Such materials are also useful in lubricating compositions and in aerosol foaming compositions as propellants. M. L. Schwartz et al. in U.S. Pat. No. 3,755,427 describe the production of perfluoropolyether polymers having sulfonyl groups in the chain by reacting perfluoropolyether polymers containing active hydrogens with perfluoroalkyl-halo sulfonyl halide reagents. The perfluoroalkyl-halo sulfonyl halide reagents are prepared by reacting the corresponding halobenzenesulfonyl chlorides with fluorocarbons in the liquid phase. In the examples, perfluorohexane sulfonyl fluoride is reacted with tetrafluoroethane to produce a perfluorohexyl-2,2,2,-trifluoroethyl sulfonyl ether. In U.S. Pat. No. 3,560,556, D. G. Schlom describes the production of perfluoroalkylsulfonyl halide surfactants by the reaction of fluorotelomer sulfonyl halides and perfluoro-tertiary-alkyl halides. The resultant products are described as capable of forming the corresponding perfluoroalkylsulfonyl amides, perfluoroalkylsulfony
